Hallmarks

Fineness marking in the Austro-Hungarian Empire is known to have existed from 1366 when two Austrian Archdukes (Albrecht and Leopold) issued a decree on assaying precious metals. Two guild masters under the supervision of the Master of the Mint were appointed to test fineness. The application of this system was not universal or obligatory. However it was widely used by jewelers, silversmiths and goldsmiths as a means of verifying the type of materials used in their work. That these same marks would be applied to orders and medals is to be expected when one considers that the manufacturers of these awards were for the most part the same jewelers and metal smiths who had developed the system of hallmarks.

In 1806 a regulated system of marking was introduced throughout the Austro Hungarian Empire with the exception of Hungary, Slovakia and Transylvania. This system was modified in 1824. Later three conventions of Austro-Hungarian gold and silver smiths and government representatives were held. These meetings occurred in 1835, 1852 and 1856 and were called to consider more comprehensive marking regulations. These meetings culminated in a law establishing a uniform and obligatory system of marks for the whole empire. These regulations were established in 1867 and were slightly modified in 1872 to include the essay office letter in the fineness hallmark. Standards for domestic and imported articles in precious metals were established and substituted the decimal system for the previously used Lot System; assay or control offices were established with staff who were made responsible to the State Secretary; all finished articles were required to be assayed at the Assay Office, to bear a manufacture's mark, alloy confirmation marks, and duty marks indicating the tax paid for essay control.

Four classes of official punches (punzen) were to be found on awards under the 1867 and 1872 laws. The first group designates the assay office (amtpunze); the second is the "VR" (vorratsstempel) used on old or existing stocks of articles at the inception of the new law; and the third group comprises the alloy classification (feingehalt) which indicated fineness of the precious metal incorporated in the item being marked. The fineness was indicated by the outer shape of the punch mark the image it contained and by the Arabic numeral displayed therein. The fourth type of stamp is the maker's mark specified in the law but not always used in order insignia. All of the stamps except the maker's mark can be considered as true hallmarks as they relate to the assay function, office identification and supporting tax or duty. Medals produced by the national mint after 1875 were stamped with an A within a circle on the rim.

Other marks are sometimes found on awards. These include numbers, dates, personalized inscriptions etc. Since these are quite variable they are mentioned but will not be discussed at any length in this document. The official punches will however be examined in some depth.

Note: Before proceeding I wish to recognize Bob McNamara who spent two days with me at an OMSA convention many years ago explaining the Austrian system of hallmarks. His generosity in taking time to teach me about these marks launched a lifetime of research on the awards of the Austrian and Austro-Hungarian Empire, and for this I am very grateful.

These hallmarks were placed in various locations on the orders and medals. On orders hallmarks could be found in a number of locations on the awards. Among these locations are:

- On the suspension ring
- On the loop attaching the order to the suspension ring
- If a crown is present on the banderols of the crown
- On the cross at the top of the crown
- On the attachment between the cross and the badge

Assay Office Letter Marks (Amptspunze)

Approximately 30 cities in the empire had assigned letters, some with a subscript numeral when the same letter had to be used more than once. From 1866 to 1872 these assay office letter punches were free standing. After 1872 they could be used as free standing punches but were also incorporated into all of the fineness punches. The letter A for Vienna is the most commonly seen mark on Austrian awards.

The Assay Office characters are composed of Latin block letters, which are assigned in each case to a specific Assay office. The letters associated with a punch location may have attached numbers. The Assay Office characters (letter or letter with number) have the following meaning:

A = Vienna, A1 = Vienna Neustadt, A2 = St. Polten, A3 = Waidhofen , A4 = Scheibbs, A5 = Krems, A6 = Brunn, A7= Iglau, A8 = Olmutz, A9 = Freudenthal, A10 = Troppau, A11 = Teschen;

B = Linz, B1 = Steyr, B2 = Ried, B3 = Braunau, B4 = Salzburg, B5 = Ischl;

C = Prague, C1 =Liberec, C2 = Teplice, C3 = Karlsbad, C4 = Pilsen, C5 = Budweis, C6 = Czaslav, C7 = Eger;

E = Krakau, E1 = Biala, E2 = Bochnia, E3 = Tarnow, E4 = Rzesow, E5 = Neu-Sandec;

F = Lemberg, F1 = Przemyśl, F2 = Stanislaw, F3 = Brody, F4 = Tarnopol, F5 = Czernowitz, F6 = Brezan, F7 = Drohobycz;

G = Graz, G1 = Marburg, G2 = Klagenfurt, G3 = Ljubijana;

H = Hall in Tyrol, H1 = Bregenz, H2 = Bozen, H3 = Trient; (after 1872 the following letters indicated the following sites: H = Bregenz, H1 = Innsbruck, H2 = Bozen, H3 = Trient);

K = Klagenfurt

L = Laibach

M = Trieste, M1 = Gorz, M2 = Rovigno, M3 = Zara, M4 = Spalato, M5 = Ragusa, M6 = Pirano, M7 = Cattaro, M8 = Sebenio;

N = Zara, N1 = Spalato, N2 - Ragusa;

P = Pest, P1 = Erlau, P4 = Pressburg, P5 = Raab, P6 = Odenburg;

Tax Exemption Inventory Punch (Vorratsstempel): this punch is composed of the letters VR which are found inside of a characteristic shape. The stamp was used to mark old or existing stocks of orders or medals which incorporated precious metals and that were in existence when the new hallmark laws went into effect and thus were exempt from additional fees.

There are two versions of the 1810-1824 tax exemption inventory punch. These marks were used to identify items manufactured prior to 1810.

This is the 1866 tax exempt inventory punch. It denotes items that were manufactured prior to 1866.

1867-1872 Inventory Punch: These punches were used to identify items in gold or silver for which the tax had been paid prior to 1867. Punches with the number 600, 750, 800, 900, 925 and 950 are known to exist.

This kidney shaped punch with the number 750 is the inventory punch for gold items that are 750 fine gold.

Special notations on the bottom of cases

In addition to the makers name which sometimes is found on the bottom of award boxes these are five types of other known notations.

Type I: A handwritten notation of the year the award was issued and on some occasions the award number. This is believed to be the earliest version of these marks. Marks of this type have been noted for the years 1877-1878.

Type II: A blue and white octagonal sticker with the year date the award was issued and the number of the award written on it in handwriting. This is believed to be a tax stamp. Stamps of this type have been noted for the years 1894 to 1910. This sticker overlaps with Type III and Type V.

Type III: A black and white rectangular sticker with the year date the award was issued printed on the stamp along with a decorative design. This is believed to be a tax stamp as its dates of issuance overlaps the Type IV stamps. Stamps of this type have been noted for the year 1901

Special notations on bottom of cases (continued)

Type IV: A blue and white rectangular sticker with a decorative design on the margin. The year date of the award in purple ink appears to be stamped in the center of the sticker. This is believed to be a tax stamp. The dates of issuance overlap the Type III stamps. Stamps of this type have been noted for the years 1906-1916

Type V: A stamped notation of the year of the award. Marks of this type have been noted for the years 1885-1918. After 1916 the date stamp is on some occasions accompanied by the word BRONZE or the letters BR for bronze.
